DEVELOPMENT OF DATA COLLECTION FORMS

Establishment of GRENDIN
The Grenada Drug Information Network (GRENDIN), is the system through which Grenada coordinates the collection and dissemination of drug-related statistics information from all institutions involved in the area of drug control, or the collection of relevant statistical data (financial crimes, firearms etc).

It was established on 11 December 2002.
DATA COLLECTED (INDICATORS)

The information collected and disseminated from the institutions is in response to nine (9) Indicators which comprise the “GRENDIN Questionnaire of Indicators”

These Indicators incorporate aspects of the Multilateral Evaluation Mechanism (MEM) Questionnaire.

?????? QUESTIONS ?????
Successes and challenges of GRENDIN

IMPROVEMENT OF SUCCESSES
AND
COUNTERACTING THE CHALLENGES
CHALLENGES FACED

- Collection of data
  - Processed data
  - Raw data
- Unified or standard units of measurements used to describe data
- Time frame for the collection of data
- Change of government
Data is collected manually.

Some delays in collecting data, due to modus operandi of some institutions. However, the data is collected, despite these delays.
Unified or standard units of measurements to describe data

- Special workshop called to standardize the units of measurements
- Power points made to highlight the mistakes and units to be used
- Conversion software made available to make the necessary conversion
Change of Government

- Meeting with new Ministers, PS’s and Heads of departments
- Update them on the workings of GRENDIN
- Solicit buy-in
- Inform them of the importance of the network and the information as a stepping stone for the creation of policies
Successes

GRENDIN has worked very well.

Data is collected in a way that it speaks directly to MEM and other international agencies that require data from Grenada.

It has created positive changes in the way the institutions collect and disseminate information.

Local regional and international agencies can readily access data in a timely and orderly fashion.
Success continued

§ The GRENDIN report provides up-to-date data that can be easily accessed through annual reports published.

§ University students, Stakeholders of various institutions, Other ministries, Government ministers and the public at large have made request and have expressed their delight in the workings of GRENDIN
